EXPERIENCE

Benjamin T. Dyches is among a very small group qualified to both practice healthcare as a licensed provider and provide counsel for healthcare professionals and corporations.

As a dentist, Dr. Dyches owned multiple dental practices, provided care to thousands of patients, and managed a staff of over 50 employees. In 2010, he sold his dental practices and began to pursue his legal interests. Dr. Dyches subsequently graduated from the J. Reuben Clark Law School at Brigham Young University with a focus in business law and alternative dispute resolution.

He currently cares for patients at his office in Provo, Utah as well as providing healthcare consulting and compliance services through his firm, Aegis Protectors, and lectures on healthcare and business law and lawsuit prevention through asset protection. Dr. Dyches is passionate about protecting the providers in our society and making difficult legal concepts approachable and meaningful.
